

Combined BA/BS/MD Programs for High School Applicants

With these combined programs, you apply as a high school student and get guaranteed admission to medical school. To keep the offer valid, you'll have to take required courses and maintain a certain GPA.

Despite your guaranteed admission to medical school, you might still have to take the MCAT for some of these BA/MD or BS/MD programs.

In the table below, we list how long each program is and the estimated annual tuition for first year students. We've also bolded the programs that definitely do accept international students.

Most of these programs are available only to US citizens or permanent residents, so international students interested in a BA/MD program should double-check that their college of choice extends the opportunity to international as well as US students.
